

Ezekiel 41:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the side chambers were three, one over another, and thirty in order; and they entered into the wall which was of the house for the side chambers round about, that they might have hold, but they had not hold in the wall of the house.

Analysis

The side chambers—'chamber upon chamber, three, thirty in order'—stacked in three stories with thirty chambers per story (ninety total) demonstrate extensive auxiliary facilities. The Hebrew שָׁלֹשׁ (shalosh, 'three') times שְׁלֹשִׁים (sheloshim, 'thirty') provides ample storage and function space. The phrase 'entered into the wall which was of the house for the side chambers round about' explains structural integration—chambers built into wall thickness, not attached afterward. This engineering solution combined structural strength with functional space. Reformed theology sees comprehensive provision in God's house—nothing lacking for legitimate needs. The ninety chambers picture abundant resources for ministry, requiring good stewardship. God provides generously; His people must manage wisely (1 Corinthians 4:1-2).

Historical Context

Solomon's temple had similar three-story side chambers with increasing width at each level (1 Kings 6:5-10). These housed temple treasures, priestly garments, tithes, offerings, and equipment (1 Chronicles 9:26-33, Nehemiah 10:37-39). The structural integration prevented weakening main walls while maximizing interior space. Ancient architecture used similar techniques—thick walls with integrated chambers. The ninety chambers (three stories times thirty per floor) provided extensive facilities. Post-exilic temple rebuilders faced limited resources, yet Haggai encouraged them that future glory would exceed past splendor (Haggai 2:9). The chambers' abundance illustrates God's generous provision—He supplies everything needed for life and godliness (2 Peter 1:3).

Study Questions

1. How well do you steward the 'ninety chambers' (abundant resources) God provides for ministry and service?
2. What structural integration (built-in spiritual disciplines) supports your life versus hasty additions?
3. Do you trust God's generous provision or operate from scarcity mentality despite obvious abundance?
