

Ezekiel 43:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And on the second day thou shalt offer a kid of the goats without blemish for a sin offering; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the bullock.

Analysis

And on the second day thou shalt offer a kid of the goats without blemish for a sin offering—After altar consecration begins (v. 18-21), day two requires שְׂעִיר־עִזִּים תָּמִים (šě'îr-'izzîm tāmîm, 'a male goat without blemish') for חַטָּאת (ḥaṭṭā't, 'sin offering').

And they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the bullock—The purification (חִטָּה, ḥiṭṭē'û, 'cleanse/purge') process continues. Seven days of offerings (vv. 25-26) sanctified the millennial temple's altar. This extended consecration exceeds Mosaic law (Exodus 29:36-37—also seven days, but different details), suggesting heightened holiness in Messiah's kingdom. Even in a sinless age, altar purification remains—perhaps memorial or pedagogical, reminding redeemed humanity of sin's costliness and atonement's necessity.

Historical Context

Altar consecration was central to tabernacle (Exodus 29) and Solomonic temple (2 Chronicles 7). Ezekiel's vision, given during exile (573 BC), assured exiles that worship would resume. The elaborate seven-day consecration with multiple offerings demonstrated that God's presence among His people required thorough sanctification—a principle fulfilled ultimately in Christ's once-for-all sacrifice (Hebrews 10:10-14).

Study Questions

1. Why does altar consecration require seven days of offerings?
2. How do Old Testament altar purifications point to Christ's perfect sacrifice?
3. Will millennial temple include actual sacrifices, or are these symbolic?
