

Ezekiel 9:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Slay utterly old and young, both maids, and little children, and women: but come not near any man upon whom is the mark; and begin at my sanctuary. Then they began at the ancient men which were before the house.

Analysis

"Slay utterly old and young, both maids, and little children, and women: but come not near any man upon whom is the mark; and begin at my sanctuary." Comprehensive slaughter spares no age or gender except the marked. The command "begin at my sanctuary" demonstrates that judgment starts with God's house (1 Peter 4:17). Those with greatest privilege face first accountability. The temple, center of covenant relationship, becomes ground zero for judgment. This reverses expectations—religious proximity doesn't protect but increases accountability when violated.

Historical Context

Babylon's conquest indeed killed across all demographics (Lamentations 2:21). The command to "begin at my sanctuary" found literal fulfillment—the temple was systematically destroyed, priests executed (2 Kings 25:18-21), and sacred vessels looted. Starting judgment at the sanctuary demonstrated that religious formalism without heart righteousness provides no protection. God judges His own house most severely when it harbors the greatest hypocrisy.

1. How does judgment beginning at God's sanctuary challenge presumption based on religious proximity?
2. What does comprehensive judgment (all ages, genders) teach about sin's universal condemnation?
3. In what ways should church leaders and members examine themselves knowing judgment begins with God's house?
