

Ezra 6:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Also I have made a decree, that whosoever shall alter this word, let timber be pulled down from his house, and being set up, let him be hanged thereon; and let his house be made a dunghill for this.

Analysis

The penalty decree—'whosoever shall alter this word, let timber be pulled down from his house, and being set up, let him be hanged thereon'—imposes severe punishment for violation. This brutal enforcement protected the restoration work from interference. The additional curse 'and let his house be made a dunghill for this' threatens ultimate shame. God's purposes are so important that He providentially arranges even severe penalties to protect His work.

Historical Context

Ancient imperial decrees commonly included severe penalties for violation—crucifixion, impalement, or hanging were standard capital punishments. The house becoming a dunghill added permanent disgrace to execution. Such harsh penalties demonstrated decree seriousness and deterred opposition. While Christians don't endorse cruel punishments, Scripture records that God used contemporary penal practices to protect His people and work.
