

Ezra 7:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For upon the first day of the first month began he to go up from Babylon, and on the first day of the fifth month came he to Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him.

Analysis

The departure date—'upon the first day of the first month'—aligned with Israel's religious calendar (Nisan, the month of Passover and Exodus). This timing associated Ezra's journey with redemption theology. The arrival date—'the first day of the fifth month'—exactly four months later demonstrates both planning and providence. The statement 'according to the good hand of his God upon him' appears twice (vv. 6, 9), emphasizing divine favor as the true source of success.

Historical Context

Beginning travel on Nisan 1 (April) avoided winter rains and spring flooding. It also held symbolic significance—the month of Exodus and Passover, types of redemption. Ezra's journey thus recapitulated Israel's fundamental redemptive experience. The phrase 'good hand of his God' emphasizes not mere success but divine blessing and favor. This language appears throughout Ezra-Nehemiah, creating theological framework emphasizing providence over chance.

Study Questions

1. How does timing the journey to match Exodus patterns demonstrate biblical theology shaping practical decisions?
2. What does repeated emphasis on God's 'good hand' teach about attributing success to divine grace rather than human merit?
