

Ezra 9:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then were assembled unto me every one that trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the transgression of those that had been carried away; and I sat astonished until the evening sacrifice.

Analysis

The gathering: 'Then were assembled unto me every one that trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the transgression of those that had been carried away.' The phrase 'trembled at the words of God' describes those who take Scripture seriously with appropriate fear. These gathered supporters felt proper horror at covenant violation. Their assembly around Ezra demonstrates that spiritual leadership attracts those with similar godly values. The contrast 'those that had been carried away' (returned exiles) had committed this sin—even those who should know better from exile experience.

Historical Context

The gathering around grieving Ezra created visible division between those who trembled at God's word and those comfortable with compromise. This separation was necessary for reformation. The term 'trembled' echoes Isaiah 66:2's commendation of those who 'tremble at my word.' These faithful few provided base for reform movement. Their presence encouraged Ezra and eventually sparked broader repentance (Ezra 10:1). Corporate sin requires a righteous remnant catalyzing reformation.
