

Galatians 3:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

Analysis

That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith. This verse states the dual purpose of Christ's redemptive curse-bearing:

1. so that 'the blessing of Abraham' (see verses 8-9) 'might come on the Gentiles' (hina eis ta ethnē hē eulogia tou Abraam genētai, ἵνα εἰς τὰ ἔθνη ἡ εὐλογία τοῦ Ἀβραάμ γένηται)—the Abrahamic promise now extends to the nations
2. so that 'we might receive the promise of the Spirit' (hina tēn epangelian tou pneumatōs labōmen, ἵνα τὴν ἐπαγγελίαν τοῦ πνεύματος λάβωμεν)—both Jew ('us,' v. 13) and Gentile receive the Spirit.

The phrase 'through Jesus Christ' (en Christō Iēsou, ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ) identifies the means: union with Christ, who bore the curse. 'The promise of the Spirit' is the Spirit Himself, the fulfillment of Old Testament promises (Isaiah 32:15, 44:3

Ezekiel 36:27; Joel 2:28-29). The Spirit is both blessing and the guarantee of the full inheritance (Ephesians 1:13-14). Both reception clauses end with 'through faith' (dia tēs pisteōs, διὰ τῆς πίστεως)—faith remains the sole means of receiving these blessings.

This verse ties together Paul's argument: Christ redeemed us from the curse (v. 13) so Abraham's blessing reaches Gentiles (fulfilling Genesis 12:3, quoted in v. 8) and so all believers receive the promised Spirit (echoing verses 2-5). The Judaizers offered Gentiles conditional, Law-based blessing; Paul offers them full, unconditional, Spirit-based blessing through Christ's substitutionary death and resurrection.

Historical Context

The 'promise of the Spirit' alludes to Joel 2:28-29 (quoted at Pentecost, Acts 2:17-21), where God promises to pour out His Spirit on 'all flesh' in the last days. Peter's Pentecost sermon announced the fulfillment: the Spirit is now given to all who repent and believe (Acts 2:38-39). The Gentile Pentecost at Cornelius's house (Acts 10:44-48) proved the Spirit comes to uncircumcised Gentiles by faith. Paul's argument in Galatians 3 hinges on this undeniable reality: Gentiles received the Spirit without circumcision (v. 2), proving God justifies by faith, not Law-works.

Study Questions

1. How does verse 14 connect Christ's curse-bearing (v. 13) to the inclusion of Gentiles in Abraham's blessing?
2. What is the significance of the Spirit being called 'the promise of the Spirit'—both the promise and the fulfillment?
3. How does receiving the Spirit 'through faith' dismantle any attempt to add Law-works as a requirement for full blessing?
