

Galatians 4:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage?

Analysis

But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage? Paul's bewildered rebuke. "But now, after that ye have known God" (nyn de gnontes theon)—dramatic contrast with verse 8. They've come to know God through the gospel. Paul immediately corrects: "or rather are known of God" (mallon de gnōsthentes hypo theou). God's knowledge of us precedes and causes our knowledge of Him. Election and calling come first; human response follows.

"How turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements" (pōs epistrephete palin epi ta asthenē kai ptōcha stoicheia). "Weak" (asthenē, ἀσθενῆ) means powerless, unable to save. "Beggarly" (ptōcha, πτωχά) means poverty-stricken, bankrupt—these elementary principles are spiritually bankrupt, offering nothing of value. "Turn again" (epistrephete palin)—shockingly, to embrace law-observance is to return to the same category as pagan religion. "Whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage" (hois palin anōthen douleusai thelete)—they want to be enslaved again. This reveals the seductive power of legalism: it feels spiritual but produces slavery.

Historical Context

Paul's equation of Judaism with paganism as equally "weak and beggarly elements" was scandalous. Jewish opponents saw themselves as possessing divine truth while pagans had false religion. Paul argues both are elementary, external, enslaving systems contrasted with Spirit-empowered gospel freedom. This wasn't anti-Semitism but theological critique: any religion based on human performance rather than grace in Christ—whether pagan ritual or Jewish law—enslaves and bankrupts.
