

Hebrews 10:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins.

Analysis

---

'It is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins.' This categorical statement declares the fundamental inadequacy of animal sacrifices. They could provide ceremonial cleansing and point to Christ, but they lacked power to remove sin's guilt. Human sin requires a human substitute; voluntary sin requires a voluntary substitute. Animals could never truly satisfy divine justice for human rebellion.

Historical Context

This verse demolishes the old covenant sacrificial system's ultimate efficacy while honoring its God-ordained role as pointer to Christ. The Greek 'aphaireo' (take away) means to completely remove, which animal blood could never do.

Study Questions

1. Why was it necessary for Christ to be human to be an adequate sacrifice for human sin?

2. How does understanding the limitations of animal sacrifices help you appreciate Christ's willing sacrifice?
