

Hebrews 7:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.

Analysis

Melchizedek was 'without father, without mother, without descent' not literally but in the Genesis record—no genealogy is given. 'Having neither beginning of days nor end of life' refers to the silence of Scripture about his birth or death. He appears and disappears from the biblical narrative mysteriously. 'Made like unto the Son of God' means his biblical presentation (not his actual nature) typifies Christ's eternal priesthood. 'Abideth a priest continually' describes both his unrecorded end and Christ's eternal priesthood.

Historical Context

Levitical priests required genealogical proof (Ezra 2:62). Melchizedek's priesthood transcended genealogy, depending solely on divine appointment—like Christ's priesthood, which derives from divine Sonship not human descent.

Study Questions

1. How does Christ's eternal priesthood without beginning or end give you greater confidence than temporary human priests?
2. What does it mean that Christ 'abideth a priest continually' for you today?
