

Hosea 11:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by their arms; but they knew not that I healed them.

Analysis

Teaching to walk: 'I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by their arms; but they knew not that I healed them.' Tender imagery: God teaching (תִּרְגַּלְתִּי, tиргальти) Ephraim to walk, holding זְרוּעָתֵיכֶם (zero'otam, their arms) like parent with toddler. Yet לֹא יְדַעַו פִּי רְפָאָתִים (lo yade'u ki refatim, they knew not that I healed them). This demonstrates divine parental care: teaching, supporting, healing—yet unrecognized and unappreciated. The ignorance is willful: refusing to acknowledge benefactor. Only Spirit-opened eyes recognize God's faithful care (Ephesians 1:18).

Historical Context

The imagery recalls exodus and wilderness period: God teaching infant nation to walk in covenant faithfulness, supporting them through difficulties, healing their diseases (Exodus 15:26). Yet Israel attributed blessings to Baal (2:5,8) or their own strength—not recognizing YHWH's providential care. This ingratitude characterizes fallen humanity: receiving divine gifts daily while denying Giver (Romans 1:21). Archaeological and historical evidence shows Israel's prosperity and survival despite their unfaithfulness—entirely due to God's covenant faithfulness, yet unacknowledged by them. This demonstrates that recognizing divine blessing requires spiritual sight, not merely experiencing blessing.

Study Questions

1. How does the parent-child imagery reveal God's tender care despite Israel's rebellion?
2. What causes people to not 'know' (recognize/acknowledge) that God heals and sustains them despite experiencing His care?
