

Hosea 4:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For they shall eat, and not have enough: they shall commit whoredom, and shall not increase: because they have left off to take heed to the LORD.

Analysis

God's ironic judgment declares 'they shall eat, and not have enough; they shall commit whoredom, and shall not increase.' The Hebrew structure emphasizes futility: eating without satisfaction, sexual activity without fruitfulness. This inverts Levitical covenant blessings (Leviticus 26:5, 'you shall eat your bread to the full') and applies covenant curses (Leviticus 26:26, Deuteronomy 28:38-41). The phrase 'they have left off to take heed to the LORD' (ki eth-YHWH azvu lishmor) explains the futility: because they abandoned covenant faithfulness (shamar—keep/guard), their activities produce emptiness. Augustine's principle applies: souls made for God find no satisfaction in created things pursued as ultimate ends. When humans reject God as their supreme good, everything else fails to satisfy the God-shaped void.

Historical Context

Israel's prosperity under Jeroboam II (mid-8th century BC) was accompanied by spiritual bankruptcy: elaborate religious rituals at Bethel and Dan, syncretism with Baal worship (fertility cult promising agricultural abundance and many children), and pursuit of political alliances. Despite material wealth, inner emptiness persisted. The Baal cult's sexual rituals (temple prostitution) promised fertility but God promised the opposite: spiritual adultery yields barrenness. Within decades, Assyria destroyed this prosperity, demonstrating that prosperity divorced from covenant faithfulness is illusory. Jesus later warned against storing earthly treasures that moths and rust destroy (Matthew 6:19-21).
