

Hosea 8:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind: it hath no stalk: the bud shall yield no meal: if so be it yield, the strangers shall swallow it up.

Analysis

For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind: it hath no stalk: the bud shall yield no meal: if so be it yield, the strangers shall swallow it up.' Proverbial wisdom: sowing wind (worthless effort) reaps whirlwind (devastating consequences). Agricultural imagery continues: no stalk, no meal - complete crop failure. Even if some yield exists, 'strangers swallow it' - foreign nations consume any productivity. This describes futility: investing in what produces nothing, losing even that little to enemies. Galatians 6:7 warns: 'Do not be deceived, God is not mocked: whatever one sows, that will he also reap.' Sowing sin reaps judgment.

Historical Context

Israel's political and religious policies ('sowing') produced disaster ('whirlwind'). Foreign alliances, idolatry, and injustice yielded no benefit, only greater problems. Whatever productivity remained, Assyria consumed through tribute then conquest. The economic futility described here preceded and accompanied military defeat. Modern parallel: policies and practices contrary to God's wisdom ultimately fail catastrophically. Jeremiah 12:13 similarly warns: 'They have sown wheat and have reaped thorns; they have tired themselves out but profit nothing.'

Study Questions

1. What 'wind' am I sowing (worthless efforts apart from God) that will reap whirlwind (devastating consequences)?
2. How does the principle of sowing and reaping demonstrate inevitable accountability for choices and actions?
