

Isaiah 10:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Wherefore it shall come to pass, that when the Lord hath performed his whole work upon mount Zion and on Jerusalem, I will punish the fruit of the stout heart of the king of Assyria, and the glory of his high looks.

Analysis

This verse promises future judgment on Assyria itself. 'When the Lord hath performed his whole work' indicates God will complete His purpose of disciplining Israel/Judah first. Then He will 'punish the fruit of the stout heart'—Assyria's pride. 'The glory of his high looks' refers to arrogant boasting. Being God's instrument doesn't excuse Assyria's wickedness. This demonstrates God's justice—He judges both His people's sin and their oppressors' pride. Instruments of judgment are themselves judged.

Historical Context

Fulfilled when Assyria fell to Babylon (612 BC). After God used Assyria to discipline Israel (722 BC) and Judah (701 BC), He destroyed Assyria for its cruelty and pride. Nineveh's destruction was so complete that its location was lost for centuries. Isaiah 37:36-38 describes Sennacherib's army's destruction and his assassination—initial fulfillment before Assyria's final collapse. God's judgments are comprehensive and sequential.
