

Isaiah 16:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And gladness is taken away, and joy out of the plentiful field; and in the vineyards there shall be no singing, neither shall there be shouting: the treaders shall tread out no wine in their presses; I have made their vintage shouting to cease.

Analysis

Joy and gladness are removed from fruitful fields; no singing in vineyards; no treaders tread out wine—all celebration ceases. The Hebrew simchah (joy) and giyel (gladness) indicate exuberant harvest celebrations. God declares "I have made their vintage shouting to cease"—divine agency removing joy. This illustrates all human joy ultimately derives from divine blessing; judgment removes that blessing, leaving emptiness. True joy comes only from God (Psalm 16:11); all other sources are temporary and subject to removal.

Historical Context

Ancient harvest festivals were central to agricultural societies—times of communal celebration, feasting, thanksgiving. Grape harvests involved joyous treading accompanied by songs. Archaeological remains include wine presses where grapes were foot-crushed. Systematic removal of harvest joy created profound social trauma—eliminating not just food but communal celebrations bonding society. This judgment struck Moab's cultural heart.
