

Isaiah 29:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Stay yourselves, and wonder; cry ye out, and cry: they are drunken, but not with wine; they stagger, but not with strong drink.

Analysis

Stay yourselves, and wonder; cry ye out, and cry (הִתְמַהֲמְהוּ וְתִמְהוּ הַשְׁתַּעֲשְׁעוּ וְשַׁעוּ) hitmahmehu utmahu hishta'ash'u vasho'u)—a cascade of imperatives calling for astonishment and dismay. The verb מהה (mahah) means to delay, linger in stunned amazement. They are drunken, but not with wine (שָׁכְרוּ וְלֹא יַיִן, shakhru velo yayin)—they stagger in spiritual stupor, not alcoholic intoxication. They stagger, but not with strong drink (נָעוּ וְלֹא שֵׁכָר, na'u velo shekhar)—their reeling comes from divine judgment, not שֵׁכָר (shekhar, beer/fermented drink).

Isaiah shifts from Assyria's defeat (vv. 1-8) to Judah's spiritual blindness. The people should be astonished at God's deliverance, but instead they remain in drunken stupor—unable to perceive spiritual realities. They're cognitively impaired, not by wine but by willful rebellion. This moral intoxication renders them incapable of discernment. Paul quotes this passage (Romans 11:8) regarding Israel's spiritual blindness to the Messiah.

Historical Context

Despite witnessing miraculous deliverance from Assyria (701 BC), Judah failed to maintain spiritual fidelity. Within a generation, King Manasseh led the nation into gross idolatry (2 Kings 21). The temporary reform under Josiah couldn't prevent eventual Babylonian exile. The spiritual drunkenness Isaiah diagnosed proved chronic and fatal.

Study Questions

1. What does 'spiritual drunkenness' look like—being unable to perceive God's work despite evidence?
2. How can people witness God's miraculous intervention yet remain in stubborn unbelief?
3. In what areas might you be 'staggering' in moral confusion rather than walking in clear-minded obedience?
