

Isaiah 35:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees.

Analysis

The command to "strengthen" weak hands and "confirm" feeble knees shifts to direct exhortation. This pastoral language addresses spiritual discouragement, using physical metaphors for spiritual weakness. Hebrews 12:12 quotes this verse in context of persevering faith. The imperative mood shows that believers have responsibility to encourage one another, not merely wait passively for God's intervention. Strengthening weak believers is part of the church's mutual ministry.

Historical Context

Written during Assyrian threats, this exhortation encouraged faithfulness despite overwhelming circumstances. The weak and fearful needed strengthening for the trials ahead.
