

Isaiah 4:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the LORD will create upon every dwelling place of mount Zion, and upon her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night: for upon all the glory shall be a defence.

Analysis

The promise of divine presence—cloud by day and flaming fire by night—deliberately echoes Exodus imagery of God's presence guiding Israel (Exodus 13:21-22). The phrase 'upon every dwelling place of mount Zion, and upon her assemblies' extends Shekinah glory beyond tabernacle/temple to every habitation, anticipating new covenant reality where God dwells with His people directly (Revelation 21:3). The covering 'tabernacle' provides both guidance and protection, fulfilled in Christ who 'tabernacled among us' (John 1:14).

Historical Context

Exodus theophany was paradigmatic divine presence. Isaiah's prophecy promises renewed covenant intimacy surpassing even wilderness glory, pointing to eschatological restoration.
