

Isaiah 40:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

To whom then will ye liken God? or what likeness will ye compare unto him?

Analysis

This rhetorical question introduces a polemic against idolatry (verses 19-20). The Hebrew 'damah' (liken/compare) challenges any attempt to reduce God to creaturely categories. God's incomparability ('ein kamohu'—none like Him) is foundational to biblical monotheism and worship. Any image inherently diminishes and falsifies God's nature.

Historical Context

Surrounded by Babylonian idolatry with its elaborate god-images and religious iconography, Isaiah reminds Israel that their God transcends all representation and comparison.
