

Isaiah 43:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old.

Analysis

---

The surprising command: 'Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old.' After emphasizing the Exodus, God says don't dwell there! The Hebrew 'zakar' (remember) in negative form suggests not fixating on past mercies when greater works are coming.

Historical Context

This doesn't deny the Exodus's importance but says God's coming work (return from Babylon, ultimately Messiah's redemption) will so exceed past deliverances that they'll pale in comparison—a greater Exodus is coming.

1. How can dwelling on past blessings actually hinder anticipation of greater works God plans?
2. What past experiences might you need to move beyond to embrace God's new work?
