

Isaiah 46:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Bel boweth down, Nebo stoopeth, their idols were upon the beasts, and upon the cattle: your carriages were heavy loaden; they are a burden to the weary beast.

Analysis

Bel (Marduk) and Nebo (Nabu), Babylon's chief deities, are depicted as burdensome cargo loaded on weary beasts, contrasting with Yahweh who carries His people (v. 3-4). This reversal exposes idolatry's fundamental irrationality - worshipers must bear their gods rather than being borne by them. The gods 'stoop' and 'bow down' in defeat, foreshadowing Babylon's fall and anticipating Philippians 2:10 where every knee bows to Christ.

Historical Context

During Babylon's fall to Cyrus (539 BC), Nabonidus had gathered images of regional deities into Babylon for protection - they became liabilities in evacuation. Archaeological evidence confirms Marduk and Nabu worship dominated Babylonian religious life.
