

Isaiah 46:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

To whom will ye liken me, and make me equal, and compare me, that we may be like?

Analysis

The rhetorical question 'To whom will ye liken me, and make me equal?' asserts God's incomparability, establishing the foundation for worship and faith. The verb 'liken' (damah) implies not just comparison but attempted equation, which is the essence of idolatry - reducing God to manageable categories. This anticipates Paul's worship in Romans 11:33-36 before God's unsearchable ways.

Historical Context

In polytheistic culture, gods were routinely compared, ranked, and amalgamated (syncretism). Isaiah's radical monotheism insisted on Yahweh's absolute uniqueness, preparing theology for New Testament Trinitarianism's 'only true God' (John 17:3).
