

Isaiah 5:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he will lift up an ensign to the nations from far, and will hiss unto them from the end of the earth: and, behold, they shall come with speed swiftly:

Analysis

God's 'lifting up an ensign' (signal) to distant nations and 'hissing' (whistling to summon) them depicts sovereign control over foreign powers used as judgment instruments. The imagery of nations coming 'swiftly' from 'the end of the earth' shows divine orchestration of history—even pagan armies accomplish God's purposes. This anticipates Habakkuk's revelation that God raised Chaldeans for judgment (Habakkuk 1:6) and demonstrates the Reformed conviction of divine providence governing all events.

Historical Context

Assyria and later Babylon functioned as God's rod of anger (Isaiah 10:5), unknowingly serving divine purposes while pursuing their own imperial ambitions.

Study Questions

1. How does God's sovereign use of ungodly nations for judgment display His comprehensive providence?
2. What modern powers might God be 'whistling' for purposes we don't yet perceive?
