

Isaiah 5:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

In mine ears said the LORD of hosts, Of a truth many houses shall be desolate, even great and fair, without inhabitant.

Analysis

The oath formula 'In mine ears said the LORD of hosts' emphasizes divine determination to judge. The prophecy that 'many houses shall be desolate' and 'great and fair, without inhabitant' describes judgment through depopulation—likely exile. Beautiful dwellings emptied of occupants illustrate vanity of material accumulation without covenant faithfulness. This anticipates Jesus' teaching about the rich fool whose barns couldn't secure his soul (Luke 12:16-21).

Historical Context

Babylonian exile fulfilled this prophecy literally as Jerusalem's houses stood empty. Archaeological evidence shows 6th century BC destruction layers confirming widespread abandonment.

1. How does the certainty of earthly dwellings becoming desolate inform our investment priorities?

2. What 'great and fair' possessions might we accumulate that ultimately stand empty?
