

Isaiah 54:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For the mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith the LORD that hath mercy on thee.

Analysis

The promise that 'the mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed' depicts cosmic upheaval, yet 'my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed' establishes that God's love is more stable than creation itself. The oath 'saith the LORD that hath mercy on thee' grounds assurance in divine character. This anticipates eternal security - even if creation dissolves, God's covenant stands.

Historical Context

Exile shook Israel's confidence in covenant security. God swears that His covenant is more permanent than mountains - even if natural order fails, His promise endures. This 'covenant of peace' finds ultimate expression in new covenant sealed by Christ's blood.

Study Questions

1. How does knowing God's covenant love is more permanent than mountains themselves strengthen your assurance?
2. What does it mean that God has sworn a 'covenant of peace' that cannot be removed regardless of your circumstances?
