

Isaiah 57:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He shall enter into peace: they shall rest in their beds, each one walking in his uprightness.

Analysis

The assurance 'He shall enter into peace: they shall rest in their beds, each one walking in his uprightness' describes death as entering rest for the faithful. The phrase 'walking in uprightness' emphasizes that peace comes through righteousness, not compromise. This demolishes fear of death for believers - it's entrance into peace, not punishment. The 'rest in their beds' imagery depicts peaceful, dignified transition from earthly labor to heavenly rest.

Historical Context

Contrasted with wicked dying violently (v. 20-21), the righteous experience peaceful death as entry into God's presence. This anticipates Hebrews 4:9-11's 'rest for the people of God' and Revelation 14:13 ('Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord...they rest from their labours').
