

Isaiah 60:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

Analysis

The contrast 'darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people' depicts comprehensive spiritual ignorance, yet 'the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee' promises concentrated divine revelation to Israel. This establishes that God's light shines brightest against darkest background. The purpose: 'his glory shall be seen' - God's self-revelation attracts nations to His light-bearing people.

Historical Context

This anticipates both post-exilic temple restoration and ultimate fulfillment in Christ - 'light of the world' (John 8:12) arising in dark Roman paganism. The church inherits this light-bearing mission (Matthew 5:14), displaying God's glory to dark world.
