

Isaiah 66:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things?
Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once? for as soon as Zion travailed, she brought forth her children.

---

Rhetorical questions express astonishment at rapid fulfillment: "Who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things? Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once?" The Hebrew ka'zot (such a thing) and ka'eleh (such things) emphasize the unprecedented nature of what follows. The questions build—can earth bring forth in one day? Can a nation be born at once? These seem impossible. Then comes the answer: "for as soon as Zion travailed, she brought forth her children." Using birth imagery, God promises that Zion's travail (the Hebrew chalah suggests labor pains) immediately produces birth. No extended labor—immediate delivery. From a Reformed perspective, this prophesies the rapid expansion of God's kingdom. At Pentecost, 3,000 were added in one day (Acts 2:41). The church grew explosively throughout Acts. What seemed impossible—a nation born instantly—occurred as the Spirit birthed the church. This illustrates sovereign grace's power to accomplish in moments what humans couldn't achieve in years.

Historical Context

The post-exilic community struggled with slow, difficult rebuilding. God promised miraculous reversal—instantaneous fulfillment when His time came. Pentecost began fulfillment: the Spirit birthed the church in power, adding thousands rapidly (Acts 2:41, 4:4, 5:14, 6:7). Throughout church history, revivals have demonstrated this principle—seasons when God works with unusual power, accomplishing in days what took years before. Complete fulfillment awaits Christ's return when the full number of the elect is instantaneously gathered and transformed (1 Corinthians 15:51-52, 1 Thessalonians 4:16-17).
