

Isaiah 7:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is Remaliah's son. If ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established.

Analysis

The parallelism limiting Ephraim's head to Samaria and Samaria's head to Remaliah's son emphasizes human limitations, contrasting with Judah's divine protection. The pivotal statement 'If ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established' (Hebrew word play: 'im lo ta'aminu ki lo te'amenu') makes faith prerequisite to security. Belief in God's promises, not political alliances, ensures stability. This anticipates New Testament emphasis that faith is foundation (Hebrews 11:1, 6) and that unbelief brings judgment (Hebrews 3:19).

Historical Context

Ahaz faced choice: trust God's promise or seek Assyrian alliance. His choice of alliance brought temporary relief but ultimate subjugation, demonstrating that unbelief has consequences.
