

Isaiah 8:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Moreover the LORD said unto me, Take thee a great roll, and write in it with a man's pen concerning Maher-shalal-hash-baz.

Analysis

God commands Isaiah to create a public legal document as a prophetic witness. The 'great roll' (large tablet or scroll) and 'man's pen' (ordinary writing) emphasize public accessibility—this prophecy would be clearly visible to all. The name 'Mahershalahashbaz' means 'speed the spoil, hasten the prey,' prophesying Syria and Israel's imminent defeat by Assyria. This demonstrates God's sovereignty over nations and His use of prophetic signs to authenticate His word. The public nature reflects the Reformed principle that God's word must be proclaimed openly.

Historical Context

Written around 735-732 BC during the Syro-Ephraimite crisis. Public records served as legal witnesses in ancient Near Eastern culture. The tablet would be displayed prominently, likely in the temple courts. This occurred when Syria and Israel allied against Judah, attempting to force Ahaz into their anti-Assyrian coalition. Within three years, as prophesied, both Damascus and Samaria fell to Tiglath-Pileser III (732 BC).
