

Isaiah 9:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Therefore the Lord shall have no joy in their young men, neither shall have mercy on their fatherless and widows: for every one is an hypocrite and an evildoer, and every mouth speaketh folly. For all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still.

Analysis

Universal corruption explains why God shows no mercy—even young men, orphans, and widows (normally protected classes) find no favor. 'Therefore' indicates logical consequence. 'Every one is an hypocrite and an evildoer' declares total corruption. 'Every mouth speaketh folly' shows sin's comprehensive nature—words reveal hearts (Matthew 12:34). The refrain returns: despite this judgment, God's anger continues and His hand remains stretched out. Even severe judgment hasn't accomplished repentance, necessitating further discipline.

Historical Context

By the late 8th century BC, northern Israel was thoroughly corrupt across all social classes. Archaeological evidence shows wealth disparity, exploitation of the poor, and syncretistic religion permeating society. Even widows and orphans—usually objects of divine protection—were corrupted. This comprehensive moral failure justified God's comprehensive judgment. Hosea and Amos also described this total societal corruption during the same period.
