

James 1:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

Analysis

For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. This person beholds himself, departs, and immediately forgets what manner of man he was. The verbs—beheld (katenoēsen, κατενόησεν), went away (apelthen, ἀπῆλθεν), forgot (epelatheto, ἐπελάθετο)—depict culpable negligence. Forgetfulness is moral, not mental; he chooses not to act on the revelation.

James exposes spiritual amnesia common in nominal religion. The gospel reveals our sin and Christ's provision; to walk away unchanged is to despise grace. Reformed piety emphasizes meditation and application to avoid such forgetfulness.

Historical Context

In oral cultures, memory work was prized. James's warning would sting those proud of memorizing Torah yet failing to obey. Paul similarly rebukes Corinthians for forgetting the gospel (1 Corinthians 15:1-2).

Persecuted believers could excuse disobedience due to pressure; James insists that forgetting identity leads to compromised witness.
