

James 4:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain:

Analysis

Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: Come now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we will go... and gain." James confronts presumption in business planning that ignores God's sovereignty. boastful planning reveals arrogant independence.

Reformed doctrine of providence insists that all plans submit to God's will. James applies theology to commerce for diaspora merchants.

Historical Context

Many Jews engaged in trade across the empire. Planning was necessary but easily became self-reliant. James addresses their habit of projecting profits without reference to God's purposes.
