

Jeremiah 11:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will punish them: the young men shall die by the sword; their sons and their daughters shall die by famine:

Analysis

This verse pronounces judgment: 'Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will punish them.' The Hebrew paqad (רְאֵת, visit, reckon with) announces divine retribution. 'The young men shall die by the sword; their sons and their daughters shall die by famine.' Specific judgments match covenant curses—sword for warriors, famine for families. The comprehensiveness (young men, sons, daughters) indicates complete devastation. Those who sought Jeremiah's life will lose their own lives and their children's lives.

Historical Context

The Babylonian invasions brought both sword (military casualties) and famine (siege starvation). Anathoth, near Jerusalem, would experience both. The specific judgment on Anathoth represents localized fulfillment within the broader national catastrophe. Archaeological evidence suggests destruction of the Anathoth area during Babylon's campaigns.
