

Jeremiah 15:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And I will make thee unto this people a fenced brasen wall: and they shall fight against thee, but they shall not prevail against thee: for I am with thee to save thee and to deliver thee, saith the LORD.

Analysis

Jeremiah's anguish deepens: 'Why is my pain perpetual, and my wound incurable, which refuseth to be healed? wilt thou be altogether unto me as a liar, and as waters that fail?' The questions express profound suffering: perpetual pain, incurable wounds, refusal of healing. The bold accusation—will God be 'as a liar, and as waters that fail'—protests apparent unfulfillment of God's promises of protection. This represents the darkest point of Jeremiah's complaint, where circumstances seem to contradict God's character. The 'waters that fail' metaphor describes wadis (intermittent streams) that dry up when most needed. Jeremiah feels God has proven unreliable like a seasonal stream.

Historical Context

Throughout his ministry, Jeremiah suffered persecution while his prophecies seemed slow to fulfill. This created crisis of faith: was God truly faithful? Would protection promised actually come?

Study Questions

1. How do we understand the propriety of such bold complaints to God in Scripture?
2. What does the 'failing waters' metaphor teach about disappointment with God during suffering?
3. How should believers process times when God's promises seem unfulfilled?
