

Jeremiah 15:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

She that hath borne seven languisheth: she hath given up the ghost; her sun is gone down while it was yet day: she hath been ashamed and confounded: and the residue of them will I deliver to the sword before their enemies, saith the LORD.

Analysis

This verse describes maternal devastation: 'She that hath borne seven languisheth: she hath given up the ghost; her sun is gone down while it was yet day.' A woman who bore seven children—symbol of complete blessing (Ruth 4:15, 1 Samuel 2:5)—now 'languishes' (amlela). 'Given up the ghost' (naphcha nafshah) means she has expired—mother dies after children. 'Her sun is gone down while yet day'—premature end, life cut short when it should continue. 'She hath been ashamed and confounded' (bosrah vechaphera). 'And the residue of them will I deliver to the sword before their enemies, saith the LORD.' Any survivors face further sword judgment. The imagery is of complete family destruction—mothers and children, blessing reversed to curse.

Historical Context

Seven children represented covenant blessing (Deuteronomy 28:4, 11); losing them all represented covenant curse (Deuteronomy 28:18, 32, 41). Siege conditions produced exactly this: mothers watching children starve, die of disease, or fall to enemy swords. Lamentations 2:11-12, 19-20 describes mothers and children dying together during Jerusalem's siege.

Study Questions

1. How does the mother of seven losing everything symbolize blessing-to-curse reversal?
2. What does 'sun going down while yet day' express about premature, unexpected tragedy?
