

Jeremiah 16:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou shalt not also go into the house of feasting, to sit with them to eat and to drink.

Analysis

Prohibition from joyful gatherings: 'Thou shalt not also go into the house of feasting, to sit with them to eat and to drink.' Jeremiah must avoid both mourning and celebration. His absence from feasting symbolizes the cessation of joy under coming judgment. This sign-act demonstrates that normal life—both its sorrows and joys—will be disrupted. The prophet's lifestyle becomes a living sermon: neither mourn (because God has withdrawn comfort) nor feast (because joy will cease). This comprehensive abstention from social life illustrates that God's judgment affects every dimension of existence, not just religious observance.

Historical Context

Feasts and communal meals were central to ancient Israelite social and religious life. Jeremiah's absence from these would have marked him as separate and provoked questions about God's relationship to the people.

Study Questions

1. How does abstention from both mourning and feasting communicate theological truth?
2. What does Jeremiah's social isolation teach about the cost of prophetic ministry?
3. How should awareness of coming judgment affect participation in normal social celebrations?
