

Jeremiah 21:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

O house of David, thus saith the LORD; Execute judgment in the morning, and deliver him that is spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor, lest my fury go out like fire, and burn that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.

Analysis

The 'morning by morning' repetition emphasizes the daily, consistent requirement for justice - not sporadic reforms but sustained righteousness. The Hebrew 'mishpat' (judgment) encompasses both legal justice and covenant faithfulness. Kings were God's vice-regents, accountable to execute His justice. Their failure brought 'the fire of mine wrath' - God's holy opposition to injustice cannot be appeased by religious ritual alone (Isa 1:11-17).

Historical Context

Addressed to the Davidic dynasty during its final years. Despite God's covenant promise to David (2 Sam 7), individual kings could still fall under judgment for covenant violations.
