

Jeremiah 23:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I have heard what the prophets said, that prophesy lies in my name, saying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed.

Analysis

I have heard what the prophets said...I have dreamed, I have dreamed (חָלַמְתִּי חָלַמְתִּי, chalamti chalamti)—the repetition mimics false prophets' dramatic claims. They prophesy lies (שֶׁקֶר, sheqer) while invoking God's name (בִּשְׁמִי, bishmi), violating the third commandment. Dreams were legitimate divine communication channels (Genesis 37, Daniel 2), making them prime counterfeit targets.

False prophets exploited dreams' subjective, unverifiable nature—'God showed me in a dream'—claiming authority without accountability. But God hears their lies. The phrase 'I have heard' (שָׁמַעְתִּי) ironically reverses their claim to hearing God. Modern equivalents claim 'God told me' to manipulate others or excuse agendas.

Historical Context

Dreams played significant roles in ancient Near Eastern religion and politics. Professional dream interpreters served royal courts. True dreams from God were distinguished by fulfillment and alignment with revealed truth. False prophets manufactured dreams to gain influence and political cover.
