

Jeremiah 31:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock.

Analysis

God commands the nations to hear and declare His word—specifically, that 'He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock.' This is a missionary charge: the nations must proclaim what God is doing for Israel. The 'isles afar off' represent the remote regions of the earth, showing that God's restoration of Israel has universal significance. The nations must witness and testify to God's covenant faithfulness.

The promise itself is covenantal: God who scattered will gather; God who judged will restore. The shepherd imagery recalls Psalm 23 and anticipates Jesus' self-identification as the Good Shepherd (John 10:11). Unlike the bad shepherds condemned in 23:1-2, God is the true Shepherd who protects, provides, and preserves His flock. The phrase 'keep him' (shamar, שָׁמַר) means guard, watch over, protect—conveying security and tender care.

The theological significance is that God's dealings with Israel demonstrate His character to all nations. Israel's restoration proves God's faithfulness, justice, and mercy. This prepares the way for the gospel's universal proclamation—if God keeps covenant with Israel despite their unfaithfulness, He will certainly keep covenant with all who trust in Christ. The nations must 'hear' and 'declare' this good news, anticipating the Great Commission (Matthew 28:19-20).

Historical Context

When exiles returned and rebuilt Jerusalem, it testified to surrounding nations of God's power and faithfulness. When Jesus came as Israel's Messiah and the gospel spread to Gentiles, the nations began declaring God's faithfulness in gathering His scattered people. The church's international, multi-ethnic composition continues to declare this message—God keeps His promises and gathers a people for Himself from every tribe and tongue.

Study Questions

1. Why must the nations hear and declare God's work of gathering Israel—what does this teach them about God's character?
2. How does God's role as the true Shepherd of His people contrast with false shepherds (political and religious leaders) who scatter the flock?
3. In what ways does Israel's restoration point forward to and prepare for the gospel's proclamation to all nations?
