

Jeremiah 42:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And now I have this day declared it to you; but ye have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, nor any thing for the which he hath sent me unto you.

Analysis

And now I have this day declared it to you (וַאֲנִי הַיּוֹם לָכֶם הִיאָדַרְתִּי)—emphasis on temporal precision: 'this very day' (הַיּוֹם, hayom) eliminates excuse of ignorance. The verb nagad (נָגַד, declare/report) stresses prophetic faithfulness—Jeremiah discharged his duty fully. But ye have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God (וְלֹא שָׁמַעְתֶּם בְּקוֹל יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵיכֶם)—again 'your God,' emphasizing their covenant responsibility.

Nor any thing for the which He hath sent me unto you (וְלֹכַל אֲשֶׁר שְׁלַחְנִי אֵלֵיכֶם)—comprehensive disobedience, rejecting not peripheral details but core divine command (stay in the land, vv. 10-12). The phrase 'sent me' (shelachani, שְׁלַחְנִי) grounds Jeremiah's authority in prophetic commission. Deuteronomy 18:18-19 warned: whoever doesn't listen to God's prophet will be held accountable. They face not mere political miscalculation but covenant rebellion.

Historical Context

The remnant's disobedience fulfilled Jeremiah's earlier prophecy that the people would refuse to listen (7:27, 25:3-7). Their rejection mirrors Israel's consistent pattern—demanding prophetic word, then rejecting it when it contradicts their will (1 Kings 22:8, Isaiah 30:10, Amos 7:10-17). This final rebellion precipitates the community's last judgment: forced exile to Egypt, dying there by sword and famine (44:12-14).
