

Jeremiah 49:33

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Hazor shall be a dwelling for dragons, and a desolation for ever: there shall no man abide there, nor any son of man dwell in it.

Analysis

And Hazor shall be a dwelling for dragons (וְחַזּוֹר לְמַעַן תָּנִים) v'hay'tah Chatzor lim'on tannim)—Tannim (jackals/desert creatures) will inhabit formerly human settlements. This fate parallels Edom's (v. 17) and Babylon's (50:39), indicating total desolation. Where humans thrived, only scavengers prowl—a reversal of creation's order signaling uncreation under God's curse.

And a desolation for ever (עֲדַעַלְמָה שְׁמָמָה, sh'mamah ad-olam)—Not temporary setback but perpetual abandonment. There shall no man abide there, nor any son of man dwell in it—The Sodom formula (v. 18) reappears. While Babylon would eventually be inhabited again (Hazor wasn't Babylon), the Arabian tribal kingdoms never recovered their former prominence. The 'forever' language uses prophetic hyperbole to emphasize thorough judgment, even if not absolute perpetuity.

Historical Context

Archaeological and historical records show significant disruption to Arabian tribal confederations during Neo-Babylonian period. While Arabs continued in the region, the specific kingdoms mentioned (Kedar, Hazor settlements) lost political cohesion and economic dominance. Later Persian and Nabatean Arabs were different entities.

Study Questions

1. What does the 'dwelling for jackals' motif teach about God's ability to reverse human civilization?
2. How should we interpret prophetic 'forever' language—as absolute or hyperbolic emphasis?
3. What does Hazor's fate teach about the impermanence of human settlements apart from God's blessing?
