

Jeremiah 51:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The LORD of hosts hath sworn by himself, saying, Surely I will fill thee with men, as with caterpillers; and they shall lift up a shout against thee.

Analysis

The LORD of hosts hath sworn by himself—the divine oath's strongest possible form, since no higher authority exists (Hebrews 6:13). God's self-oath guarantees absolute certainty. The title "LORD of hosts" (יהוה צבאות, YHWH Tseva'ot) emphasizes sovereign command over heavenly and earthly armies—Babylon faces the Commander of all forces.

Surely I will fill thee with men, as with caterpillers—the imagery of locust swarms (עַלְלָה, yeleq, swarming locust) depicts invading armies' overwhelming numbers and destructive capacity. Just as locusts devour everything, so conquering armies will consume Babylon. And they shall lift up a shout against thee—the battle cry (הִיאָד, heidad, shout, war cry) celebrates victory. The shout raised against Babylon reverses her previous triumph shouts over conquered nations. The oppressor becomes oppressed; the destroyer, destroyed. Divine justice includes measure-for-measure retribution.

Historical Context

The Medo-Persian coalition included vast multinational forces—Medes, Persians, Elamites, and others—fulfilling the prophecy of being filled with men like locusts. Ancient Near Eastern armies often numbered in tens of thousands; the imagery of locust swarms aptly describes these massive forces. The 'shout' of victory was customary ancient warfare practice—conquering armies proclaimed triumph.

When Babylon fell, those she had oppressed celebrated her downfall, fulfilling this prophecy precisely.

Study Questions

1. What does God's self-oath teach about the absolute certainty of His prophetic declarations?
2. How does the locust imagery warn about the consuming, unstoppable nature of divine judgment?
3. In what ways does measure-for-measure justice (Babylon hearing victory shouts as she had raised them) reveal God's fairness in judgment?
