

Jeremiah 52:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah.

Analysis

---

Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard (נְבָעֵזָר אָדָן, literally 'chief of the executioners') brought the leaders to Riblah (רִבְלָה), Nebuchadnezzar's military headquarters in Syria, 200 miles north of Jerusalem. Riblah was strategically located on the Orontes River, controlling trade routes between Mesopotamia and Egypt.

The journey to Riblah would have been a brutal forced march, chains binding men who once walked in power. This same Nebuzar-adan had shown kindness to Jeremiah (39:11-14), demonstrating that God can move pagan hearts to preserve His prophets even while executing judgment on covenant-breakers.

Historical Context

---

Riblah served as Pharaoh Neco's headquarters earlier (2 Kings 23:33) where he deposed Jehoahaz. Now Babylon uses the same location to judge Zedekiah, showing the transfer of regional power from Egypt to Babylon, exactly as Jeremiah prophesied.

Related Passages

---

Romans 2:1 — Judging others

Revelation 20:12 — Judgment according to deeds

Study Questions

1. What does Nebuzar-adan's dual role (executing leaders but protecting Jeremiah) reveal about God's sovereignty over pagan rulers?
  2. How does the 200-mile march to judgment symbolize the distance Judah had strayed from covenant faithfulness?
  3. In what ways does God providentially protect His faithful servants even in contexts of widespread judgment?

Interlinear Text

וְלֹא אָמַרְתָּ מֵלֵךְ כִּי נְבֻזָּרָדָן הָיָה טָבַח יְמֵינוֹ וְלֹא אָמַרְתָּ מֵלֵךְ כִּי נְבֻזָּרָדָן הָיָה טָבַח יְמֵינוֹ

רְבָלְתָהָ: בְּבָלָה מֵלָה אֶל
H413 them to the king of Babylon to Riblah
H4428 H894 H7247

From KJV Study • kjvstudy.org