

Jeremiah 6:23

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They shall lay hold on bow and spear; they are cruel, and have no mercy; their voice roareth like the sea; and they ride upon horses, set in array as men for war against thee, O daughter of Zion.

Analysis

The invading army is described with terrifying imagery: 'They shall lay hold on bow and spear; they are cruel, and have no mercy.' Their voice 'roareth like the sea,' suggesting overwhelming force. They come equipped for war, 'riding upon horses, set in array as men for war.' All this is directed 'against thee, O daughter of Zion.' This vivid description emphasizes the horror of the coming judgment. The phrase 'no mercy' is particularly striking given that these ruthless warriors are God's instruments—showing that divine judgment through human agents can be severe. The sea metaphor suggests chaos and uncontrollable power.

Historical Context

Babylonian military power was legendary, employing advanced siege technology, cavalry, and brutal tactics. Historical records confirm their ruthlessness in conquest, including mass deportations and destruction.
