

Job 14:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

My transgression is sealed up in a bag, and thou sewest up mine iniquity.

Analysis

---

'My transgression is sealed up in a bag, and thou sewest up mine iniquity.' Job describes God storing his 'transgression' (פֶּשַׁעַי, pish'i) in a sealed bag (צֶרֶר, tseror) and sewing up his 'iniquity' (אֲוֹנִי, avoni). This imagery can be read two ways:

1. God carefully preserves evidence for judgment, or
2. God covers and hides sin.

Context suggests the former—Job feels God meticulously records every fault. Yet this same imagery appears positively in Hosea 13:12 (sin stored for future reckoning) and negatively in Deuteronomy 32:34. The Gospel transforms this: Christ's blood covers our sins permanently (Hebrews 10:17, Micah 7:19—sins cast into the sea).

Historical Context

Ancient people stored valuables in sealed bags. Job uses this commercial imagery to describe how carefully God seems to preserve his sins for accounting, reflecting ancient understanding of divine record-keeping.

Study Questions

1. How does Christ transform the terror of God carefully recording our sins?
2. What comfort exists in knowing God is precisely aware of our every sin yet has chosen to cover them?
