

Job 19:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Yea, young children despised me; I arose, and they spake against me.

Analysis

Children mock Job: 'Yea, young children despised me; I arose, and they spake against me.' Being mocked by children represents ultimate humiliation—those who should respect elders instead despise him. The Hebrew 'bazah' (despise) suggests contempt, not mere disrespect. This anticipates Christ's humiliation, mocked by those He came to save. Job's experience of comprehensive rejection prefigures the Suffering Servant.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern culture valued respect for elders highly. Children mocking adults represented social breakdown and severe disrespect. That Job, formerly honored, now faces children's contempt shows his complete fall from social status.

Study Questions

1. How does Christ's experience of mockery and contempt transform our understanding of humiliation?
2. What does it mean that suffering can invert all normal social hierarchies?
3. How do we maintain dignity when treated with contempt?
