

Job 19:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

That they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever!

Analysis

Job wants testimony engraved in stone: 'That they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever!' Stone engraving with iron tool and lead filling represented most permanent ancient inscription. Job wants his testimony of innocence preserved eternally. This anticipates confidence in resurrection and final vindication. What humans won't acknowledge, the permanent record will witness.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern monumental inscriptions used iron tools to carve rock, sometimes filling grooves with lead for visibility and permanence. Such inscriptions survived centuries—exactly what Job desired for his declaration of innocence and faith.

Study Questions

1. What does our desire for permanent vindication reveal about our need for justice?

2. How does faith in final judgment comfort when present justice is denied?
3. What is the relationship between temporal vindication and eternal judgment?
