

Job 19:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God:

Analysis

Job's resurrection hope: 'And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God.' This stunning affirmation of bodily resurrection predates full biblical revelation. Even in despair, Job envisions embodied existence beyond death where vindication occurs.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern death concepts rarely included resurrection hope, making Job's statement remarkable. This prefigures New Testament resurrection teaching (1 Corinthians 15).

Related Passages

Ephesians 2:8 — Salvation by grace through faith

Romans 10:9 — Confession and belief for salvation

Study Questions

1. How does resurrection hope change your view of present suffering?
2. What does it mean to see God 'in your flesh' after death?
