

Job 20:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

His bones are full of the sin of his youth, which shall lie down with him in the dust.

Analysis

Youth's strength becomes dust: 'His bones are full of the sin of his youth, which shall lie down with him in the dust.' The wicked's youthful sins remain in their bones until death—they carry guilt to the grave. While sin does have lasting consequences, Zophar assumes all suffering that persists indicates unrepented sin. He can't conceive that God might have purposes for suffering beyond punishment for specific past sins.

Historical Context

Ancient wisdom recognized that youthful sins could have lifelong consequences (Proverbs warns about sexual immorality's lasting effects). However, Scripture also affirms forgiveness that removes guilt, even when natural consequences remain.
